The Hava Nagila Jewish Community Picnic has been a long-standing summer tradition over the years. It has provided a great opportunity to showcase our Jewish community organizations and enjoy a fun, relaxing time together. As we headed into planning for this year, we heard a lot of feedback that made it clear it was time for a refresh of this annual event. After much deliberation, we decided to take a pause on the picnic for this summer to give us space to invest thought into ways to better meet the needs of the community. So, while we will miss the Hava Nagila Jewish Community Picnic this summer, we look forward to returning next year with a newly energized and exciting event.

Creating A Place of Love and Literacy for our Teens

By Kendra Sager, Director of Midrasha Hebrew High School
A Program of the Jewish Federation of Madison

MEET MIDRASHA DIRECTOR
Kendra Sager

I feel honored and privileged to take on the role of Midrasha Director. This program has a tradition of excellence and is part of the fabric of the Madison Jewish community. I am excited to be a part of this important work. I've spent the summer meeting with parents and teachers as well as current and former students to learn about what makes this program unique and successful. It is clear to me that Midrasha serves two important purposes for our teens. It is first and foremost a facilitator of relationships - a place that allows our teens to form their own community and share their experiences with one another as Jewish teens in the Madison area. We might describe this concept as "community" or "connection" both of which I believe are firmly rooted in the concept of love. And, just as importantly, Midrasha helps to build our students' Jewish literacy so that they can enter the world feeling a connection to their shared history and having considered how they will live Jewishly as adults.

These two concepts, which I will name "love" and "literacy," are my mission as an educator. My goal is for Midrasha to be a place that develops Jewish teens who are both knowledgeable and literate and also feel loved by and love for their community.

SAVE THE PAPER or GO DIGITAL? Let us know what YOU think.

We know the Madison Jewish News is an important resource for keeping informed and up-to-date on happenings and events in the Madison Jewish community...but we often wonder, are people reading it, what do they look for in the paper, and are there better ways to communicate this information?

So, it started us thinking about whether the community could be better served by stopping the printed paper and shifting those resources to expand our online and social media efforts. We're inspired by the creative, accessible, and more timely potential this offers. The online world is ideal for sharing and viewing content from anywhere: photo galleries, an interesting blog article, a simcha or condolence, upcoming events, video features...you get the idea.

But we want to hear from you and what your preference is on this matter.
Should we keep the printed paper or expand our online resources?

Building A More Just World

By UW Hillel Staff
UW Hillel is a beneficiary organization of the Jewish Federation of Madison

This July, UW-Madison Hillel welcomed our newest staff member to the Barbra Hochberg Center for Jewish Student Life. Springboard Social Justice Fellow Shelby Fosco will be working to empower students eager to build a more just world, and supporting their efforts with Jewish values, history, and texts.

Shelby is a passionate advocate for intersectional feminism, cares deeply about ensuring that people have adequate food, shelter, and resources, and will work to engage students around those issues and others, like immigration, sustainability, and reproductive rights.

Shelby loves working with college students and comes ready to make a difference in our community having just earned an MS in Educational Leadership with an emphasis in Student Affairs and Higher Education Administration from Texas A&M University. She is eager to get to know the Jewish students in Madison as they explore, question, and grow into themselves; the most rewarding part of working with students from her perspective. Shelby brings her experience working with students and doing social justice work to Hillel and is looking forward to exploring the ways in which those two worlds intersect. We're looking forward to everything we'll be able to accomplish together this coming school year!

By Mosse/Weinstein Center for Jewish Studies at UW-Madison

The 20th Annual Greenfield Summer Institute was a great success! Held over the course of four days in July, more than 130 people attended to participate in lectures and discussions around the theme "Business, Labor and Social Justice: Jewish Perspectives, Jewish Traditions". Creating A Place of Love And Literacy for our Teens

It is often argued that one comes at the expense of the other, but I believe the synergy between these two values is what gives meaning to the Jewish experience. Each of these two values is essential to the development of our Jewish youth.

Love, cannot be our students' only anchor to their Jewish experience. Of course, it is important that our students have fun and enjoy their experience in our program, but when a student's experience is based solely on love, there is no grounding, no substance, and the love easily dissipates. When our students leave their time with us not knowing the foundations of our Jewish texts, rituals, language, and history, we are doing them a disservice. Conversely, when we focus too heavily on students' literacy, the experience may feel isolating and elitist. If students feel their religious education is only a series of drills and tests, then failure feels like a rejection from Judaism.

When our programs and educational offerings are positive experiences of Jewish learning, we help to build a foundation of love of Judaism that can sustain our students' connections through challenging, difficult, or negative experiences. Additionally, the learning experiences themselves often serve to foster community by providing groups of learners with a shared bond and language.

I accept the challenge to help our students to find both love and literacy, even if not in equal measures, so that they can continue to reach higher and higher levels of both. When the values of both love and literacy are upheld, we are preparing our children to navigate the world with a strong sense of self and a clear understanding of their place in the Jewish story. Helping to create the environment where students achieve this goal is my life's work.

I look forward to engaging with our community's amazing teens and learning with them and from them. I always appreciate feedback from the community about how our program can better meet the needs of our teens. Please feel free to reach out to me to let me know your thoughts.

Connecting with Israel

Saying Goodbye...

By Shlomit Ezer, Jewish Federation of Madison Shlicha
and Tal Sheffer, Jewish Federation of Madison Campus Shaliach

Dear Jewish Community of Madison,

We can't believe it's been two years since we first came to Madison, and that now it is time to say goodbye and go back to Israel. It feels almost impossible to sum up two years in a couple of paragraphs, but we will try. Before we came to Madison, we did not know what to expect. The only knowledge we had of Wisconsin was based on the TV show "That 70's Show", and we could barely locate Wisconsin on the map. We were also told that Madison was very cold and that the people there were very warm. It could not have been more true.

We would like to thank you all for making our time in Madison unforgettable. We were proud and happy to be a part of such a warm, welcoming community, full of people who made us feel right at home. Our experience would not have been the same without the amazing people at the Federation, Hillel, and all the community members and students who we met and came to our different programs during our time here. It was a pleasure bringing Israel to Madison and a great privilege learning about Jewish life outside Israel. Our work as Shlichim (emissaries) is not over, and the Madison Jewish community will now have two new Shlichim in Israel. We are now preparing for our next adventure in life, where I (Tal) will be a 7th grade History teacher, and I (Shlomit) will be pursuing a master's degree in Genetic Counseling.

We may be leaving soon, but we encourage you to keep in touch with us through email and Facebook, and please know that we would love to meet you in Israel whenever you come to visit there. We are hoping to be back to Madison in the future, but until then, it is always in our hearts.

Thank you all for the best times of our lives.

Love,
Shlomit and Tal

...And Hello

Welcome Danielle Man, Jewish Federation of Madison Shlicha
and Gal Ben Yishay, Jewish Federation of Madison Campus Shaliach

The Jewish Federation of Madison is excited to welcome our two new Community Shlichim, Danielle Man (who will be working primarily at the Jewish Federation of Madison) and Gal Ben Yishay (who will mostly be working on Campus) - arriving just a few days after their wedding! Danielle and Gal will be taking over for Shlomit and Tal who are returning to Israel after completing two years as our Community Shlichim.

Danielle served as head of the IT section in one of the IDF's largest training bases and at Mizrahi Tefahot Bank as a mortgage banker for two years after completing her military service. Prior to her arrival in Madison, Danielle was working as a training coordinator at Maof, a project of the Israeli Ministry of Economy which assists in the development and support of small and medium businesses. Danielle holds a BA degree in Behavioral Sciences and Human Resources from the Tel Aviv-Jaffa Academic College.

"For many years I had this feeling that I want to contribute and do more in the name of the state of Israel. I think that Shlichut is the perfect platform for learning and understanding the uniqueness of our diverse and colorful Jewish World. I truly hope to tell the story of Israel in the best way through my own perspective. We've heard so much about this amazing community and I just can't wait to meet everybody."
~ Danielle

Gal served in the IDF's Airborne division as a combat medic for 3 years, worked for over 4 years at EL AL airlines, and for the last two years as a media consultant, most recently at Fleisher Communications as an account manager on the International team. Gal holds a BA degree in Communications and Business Management from the College of Management and he is currently an MA student for Security and Diplomatic Affairs at the University of Tel Aviv.

"I am absolutely thrilled to be arriving in the beautiful city of Madison and be a part of this amazing community. I'm looking forward and excited to meet all the students who I've heard so much about. For me, it's a dream coming true and I believe that together, we'll be able to bring you a sample of Israel, the way we see it. See you soon!" ~ Gal
